Foreword

The Greeks were our ancestors intellectually, artistically and politically. The tales of Greek mythology throw light upon what the early Greeks were like.

With the rise of Greece, man became the center and most important creation in the universe, and the world was more humanized. Although the myths are explanations of some aspects of nature, in them is a deeper expression of what human beings need and must have in their gods.

We have chosen Greek mythology for the theme of the 1954 CUPOLA in tribute to those highly civilized people who developed the myths and whose cultural descendents we are.

In carrying the theme throughout this volume, we have begun by picturing a modern young girl in Grecian robes looking upon the past, the present, yes, even the future, through the pages of our book. Zeus has been chosen to represent government since he was the supreme ruler of the universe, and the organizer and source of law. Valor was dear to him. Justice was his.

Apollo, who portrays the activities in the school, was the ideal of fair youth, having divine insight into the nature of every power and faculty. Among other things, he was patron of music and poetry.

Hermes represents athletics at Mount Vernon, since his agility and strength made him easily prince in athletic events. His cunning rendered him a dangerous foe. He was the god of physical strength, athletic sports, and good luck.

Hebe, goddess of youth, who is surrounded by the "freshness of nature", represents the underclassmen. She was a delightful personality, attractive and gay.

The seniors are represented by Athena who was the goddess of wisdom. Through our years here, the class of 1954 has acquired knowledge and awareness that will help them to be better women and citizens of the world.

We have chosen quotations from several well-known poets to further the description of the gods and goddesses used. These will be found on the division pages.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Lloyd

As I try to put into words our good wishes and our farewell to the Class of 1954, the newspapers are full of stories of the latest man-made explosion to date and of its almost unbelievable results. What words can we find to say as we send you out to meet so strange and unpredictable a world? I turn, as I think of you and your graduation, to E. M. Forster who wrote in another critical year, 1939, that he discerned in the world a sort of aristocracy—an aristocracy of the sensitive, the considerate, and the plucky. (And by pluck, he meant the power to endure.) Its members are to be found everywhere and there is a secret understanding between them when they meet.

It is to that aristocracy that we commend you. There may you be found—among the sensitive, the considerate, the plucky—for with them you will represent man's permanent victory over cruelty and chaos.

May you be able to say with Rufus Jones, "I find it absolutely real that God holds one's hand. There's nothing, anywhere, to be afraid of."

Miss Patricia J. Hendrix

Our thanks go to Miss Hendrix, our class advisor, whose helpful advice, sympathy, and understanding have endeared her to us.

DEDICATION

To our parents, because we love them, and because we are grateful for all they have been to us, we dedicate the 1954 CUPOLA. Their understanding, their guidance, and their faith in us have given us a needed inspiration.

We have learned from the business of building ships that ignorance, intolerance, prejudice, and a closed mind never make for enlightenment and progress.

It is important, therefore, that you go forth with the aim to apply wisdom, not only in your personal life, but also in human service to the outside world.

even school books
can't teach you

the value of a Venus de Milo
or make an operatic solo more appealing than the "Tiger Rag."

It requires a sensitive, perceptive
ear and eye to appreciate their quality.
But the history books will tell you that it is quality which survives
the acid test of time.

Like fine music and art,
fine printing will have a lasting appeal.
The discerning individual will recognize the quality of a PRIDEMARK product.
